Are battery storage trusts facing revenue uncertainty?

In the meantime, battery storage trusts face revenue uncertainty. Gresham recently marked down its NAV per share by 15 per cent to reflect lower forecasts. The focus has turned to cash preservation: both Gresham and Harmony earlier this year suspended their dividends. Sensibly, both are trying to increase income from contracts.

What is the long duration energy storage Investment Support Scheme?

Long Duration Electricity Storage investment support scheme will boost investor confidence and unlock billions in funding for vital projects. The UK is a step closer to energy independence as the government launches a new scheme to help build energy storage infrastructure.

Are there any specialist investment trusts focusing on lithium-ion battery projects?

As such, a number of specialist investment trusts listed on the London market from 2018 onwards focus on lithium-ion battery projects. But the share prices of the two investment companies focused solely on the British battery market, Gresham House Energy Storage Fund and Harmony Energy Income Trust, have plummeted since the start of 2023.

Are battery storage funds a good investment?

Battery storage funds, though, trade at bigger discounts to diversified peers. This can be explained by their greater reliance on market prices than, say, offshore wind developers. The latter seek government contracts that guarantee a price per unit generated to cover a good slug of expected output.

Would a long-term contract increase the battery sector's attraction to investors?

Stifel thinks the battery sector's attraction to investors would "increase meaningfully" if 30-40 per cent of revenues could be fixed for longer periods. Countries outside the UK offer greater potential for longer-term contracts, but all three funds have been signing one- and 15-year contracts over recent months.
