Is there any solar power bank for around $50 that actually functions and is useful. ... I don't have a sub $50 recommendation for a portable solar array, but I used a goal zero 3 panel array for backpacking/camping and wasn't really a fan. ... Since you asked about cost effectiveness, project farm just put out a new video testing battery banks:

I have an Anker 13000 power bank and a Aukey 10000 power bank. Both work very well charging my lights, phone, and other assorted electronic gadgets. I recently purchased a solar power charger, Foxelli Dual USB 10W. When folded up it's rather small, 9"x5.5". I'm pleasantly surprised at it's performance. I use it to charge my power banks.

Another thing to consider when buying a battery is to get one with pass through charging. That means you can charge your power bank while charging another device at the same time. You simply plug your power bank to the wall and your device to the power bank. Not many power banks do this but I know the Nitecore do. It is a great time saver.
