Examples of lithium batteries are LiCoO_2 , LiFePO_4 , LiMn_2O_4 , and their mixed oxides with lithium, lithium-sulfur, lithium-air etc [1]. Lithium-sulfur (Li-S) batteries are considered one of the most optimistic energy storage systems due to their remarkable specific capacity of $1,675 \text{ mAh/g}$ and theoretical energy density close to $2,500 \text{ Wh/kg}$ for sulfur [2, 3].

Lithium ion polymer - Term previously referred to batteries with a polymer electrolyte (still under development). More commonly refers to a Li-ion battery in a soft pouch instead of a rigid metal case Various including consumer electronics, EV Lithium manganese dioxide (primary battery) Defence applications

I read somewhere that LiPo cells must be packed while applying some pressure on the faces, because during charge-discharge cycles, they puff up, and as a result, the contact between different layers inside the cell comes slightly loose, ...
